

Expanded Curriculum

Essentials of Qualitative Research Course Series

PhD Students

PhD students who have never studied social sciences are encouraged to take a graduate course in social theory from the first column in this expanded curriculum. Qualitative research explores social issues in health and health care, hence understanding social theory is vital to the definition of the research question, data analysis, and theorization of results.

Social Theory

CHL5101

Social Theory and Health

NUR1085H

Topics in Critical Perspectives in Health and Health Care

SWK4512

Research Knowledge for Social Justice

SWK6007H

Advanced Qualitative Research Methods in Social Work

Theoretical Foundations of Method

NUR1024

Foundations of Qualitative Inquiry

JRP1000

Theory and Method for Qualitative Researchers: An Introduction

SWK6307H

Designing and Implementing Qualitative Social Work Research

Data Generation

NUR1025

Doing Qualitative Research: Design and Data Collection

SOC6713

Qualitative Research Methods II: Qualitative Interviewing

Data Analysis

CHL5115

Qualitative Analysis and Interpretation

Development

Thesis Completion

& Professional

CHL5122

Advanced Qualitative Research: Framing, Writing & Beyond

